

FEEDBACK FOR SCHOOL AMBASSADORS:

23 year old female from the Philippines (went to private schools from middle school to high school):

- I asked what she didn't like about the peer program and she said that people would be suspicious if they saw you talking to the ambassador. After asking her if she would go if the program wasn't introduced as a sexual health program but ambassadors would be very well trained in regards to sexual health issues, she said that the program just seems vague.

21 year old from Albany, New York (computer science major, went to a large public high school):

- Would prefer to speak to a teacher or counselor
- Feels awkward speaking to someone that she "kinda" knows, especially if the subject of the question is intimate
- If the ambassador was a close friend, then she would approach them
